Cupboard Organization

By Anita E Kohli

- Rolling clothes rather than folding them makes them easier to find.
- Old cushion covers or open boxes are great for separating and storing small clothing items.
- A nice big box for stuff that needs to be ironed or to keep mixed laundry just taken off the washing line.
- Look at online outlets for cupboard separators - they're great!

It's worth reorganizing a shared space so each family member has their own space - a separate cupboard, or separate shelves, or set of boxes in a large wardrobe, to organize independently.

Some homes are lucky and have a folding fairy who folds and organizes if everything is taken off the line and left on the bed. This is something that one only discovers after a leap into the unknown.

GOALS

A TIME SAVER

Folding clothes is time consuming. And putting someone else's clothes away means that you have to be on call when they can't find their socks. And that takes time too.

AN ORGANISED MESS

To be able to keep unfolded clothes in a way that you can find them.
